SIR ADAM BECK REFUTES STORY

Chairman of Hydro-Electric Commission Furnishes Probe With Particulars of His Work for Scheme

NO COMPENSATION BUT SOME PERQUISITES GIVEN

At End of Six Years Was Offered Forty-Five Thousand Dollars for Services, But Declined Payment

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—The inquiry into the charges against the Ontario Hydro-Electric administration reached its conclusion today in the ruling of Judge Snyder, which banned as beyond the scope of his commission "the charge that Sir Adam Beck had considered himself a partner in the successful tender of the Niagara Power Line. The allegation was preferred by H. M. McKeown, the contractor who had the work. McKeown declared that the late C. H. Smith, who had been a Hydro commissioner, had come to him, and asked:

"Where does the chairman (Sir Adam Beck) get off in this? He is a partner in the contract as far as the witness was allowed to go."

Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, took the stand today before Judge Snyder who is investigating on behalf of the Ontario government some charges made by E. S. Settle, Beck's former secretary, in connection with the administration of the Hydro. These charges accused Sir Adam and other officers of Hydro with using money and automobiles belonging to the commission for their own convenience and with using Hydro employees to do work for themselves.

Sir Adam said that when he started on the Hydro Commission he served without compensation, but had stipulated that certain perquisites be given him, including an automobile, chauffeur and hotel expenses. For six years he took no salary, but at the end of six years he was offered a cheque by Sir James Whitney for $45,000, being at the rate of $6,000 salary and $15,000 living expenses a year. This he refused.

PREPAID TAXES TOTAL BIG SUM

CIVIC OFFICIALS DELIGHTED WITH YEAR'S RESULTS

Over $357,000 Collected This Year—Redemption and Resale of Reverted Land 20 Per Cent

Taxpayers this year is more than double the amount prepaid in 1921. Exactly $357,308.45 in prepaid taxes had been collected up to September 30, according to figures issued by City Treasurer Smith yesterday. On this amount the taxpayers received $9,536.42 in interest.

Civic officials are delighted with this year's results of the tax scheme. The amount collected, they point out, is a considerable part of the total 1924 levy of $1,824,584.47. Last year, according to the amount of prepaid taxes and $5,267.53 was received by the ratepayers as interest.

The proportionately smaller sum received in interest this year by the ratepayers indicates that the scheme is spreading in popularity among the smaller taxpayers. City Treasurer Smith believes.

Twenty per cent of the city's 387 parcels of reverted lands under the 1924 tax sale has been redeemed or resold this year, according to a statement issued yesterday. The amount paid to the city equalled 19 per cent of the upset price at tax sale of the lands. The total number of redemptions and resales was 77. The upset price paid was $23,947.43; the 1924 assessed value of the land was $130,430.00 and of the improvements, $48,220.

The space in front of the altar was banked with flowers, some bearing the names of those in highest official positions in the nation. One wreath was sent at the request of Sir Eme Howard, British Ambassador, on behalf of the British Empire.

Sit Again Thursday

Commissioners McKeown and Oliver, the members of the Board now in Vancouver, will sit here again on Thursday morning, and it is probable that they will then give an answer one way or the other to Mr. McKeown's claim that British Columbia is entitled to win by default of the railways to defend the case, and that if any adjournment is made it should be on the terms that grain rates be equalized with those elsewhere, and that the domestic grain rates be brought down to the export level.

Mr. McKeown will also speak to the question of general freight rates equalization, and the express rates cases before the commission in behalf of British Columbia, asking early action on each. He will not attempt to present evidence on either case.

INDICT TWENTY-SEVEN HEADS

San Francisco Grand Jury Enters Charges Against Principals of Vancouver Liquor Firm

ACTION WILL PREVENT ENTRY OF UNITED STATES

Outcome of Two Months' Investigation Aided by Capture of the Whisky-Laden Steamer Quadra.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—Eighty-five indictments charging violation of liquor laws, including one against Russell Whitelaw, of Vancouver, B.C., and twenty-seven against many men named as directors of the Consolidated Exporters Corporation, a Canadian concern, were returned by the Federal Grand Jury here today, in completing investigation of what was termed "the liquor smuggling situation," involving the steamship Quadra, captured here recently by revenue agents. The indictments were the outcome of a two months' investigation by Federal Prohibition forces, which gathered headway with the capture of the Quadra near the Farallone Islands with a half million dollars' liquor cargo and the disappearance of the sailing vessel Giulia, along the Pacific Coast.

Both Vessels Suspected

Both vessels were suspected by Federal agents of being actively engaged in liquor running along the coast, and the indictments list the Quadra as belonging to the Consolidated Exporters Company.

Others named include F. R. Anderson, Vancouver, W. C. attorney, who arrived here to defend members of the Quadra's crew. The indictment charges violation of the Prohibition laws and violation of the treaty between the United States.

DISCUSS INCIDENCE OF EIGHT-HOUR DAY

QUESTION ARISES AS TO SEASONAL INDUSTRIES

Meeting of Board of Adjustment at Nelson Chaired by Various Operators

NELSON, Nov. 12.—At the first sitting for the taking of evidence by the board of adjustment in connection with the eight-hour day law, held at Nelson this afternoon, M. C. Peacock, Penitentiary, presented a memorandum from ten box manufacturers of interior points, asking exemption from the operation of the act. It was represented that box-making in the interior was a highly seasonal, with winter logging, spring and summer sawing, and box-making from June to October for a strictly local and fluctuating market.

Economical Work Impossible

Last winter, it was said, there were twenty-eight days of sleigh-hauling, and the log cut had to be moved in twenty-four days. If restricted to an eight-hour day, a 48-hour week, economical operation would be impossible, the box-makers claimed. It was asserted that box-making in these circumstances was a branch of the horticultural industry and came under the provisions which exempted that seasonal industry from the operation of the act.

A. B. Townshend, of the Curlew Creamery business, claimed the dairy business also came under the exemption clause and was promised a ruling.

The McDonald Jam Company, asking if the canning industry in the rush season would be construed as a branch of the horticultural industry and was also promised a ruling.

Victoria Experiences First Frost This Fall

Six to Eight Degrees of Frost in Lower Levels Affect Vegetation—Lowest Temperature at Gonzales Was 26 Degrees, but Colder in Lower Levels—Southeast Storm Off Northern British Columbia Coast Expected to Bring Milder Weather

VICTORIA experienced between six and eight degrees of frost during the early hours of yesterday morning, according to a report issued by Mr. Napier Denison, of the Meteorological Observatory at Gonzales Heights. At the same time, he predicted much milder weather, due to a southeast storm, which is centred on the northern British Columbia coast, and is steadily moving southeastward.

The lowest temperature on Gonzales Hill in the standard seven was 31 degrees, while the temperature on the ground was 26 degrees. It was even colder in the lower levels. Mr. Denison stated, with the result that it has affected vegetation. The leaves are falling much more rapidly, while the chestnuts are dropping now. The highest temperature reached throughout yesterday was 34 degrees.

This, however, compares favorably with temperatures from other B.C. points. At Kamloops it was eight above zero yesterday; Penitentiary, 12 above; Cranbrook, one above; while across the Rockies and as far east as Calgary and Edmonton the temperatures were 14 below and 11 below respectively. Throughout the Prairies the weather was generally below zero as far east as Manitoba.

"The map indicates a severe storm from the Pacific on the northern B.C. coast," Mr. Denison reported. "This was at 5 p.m. yesterday. At Prince Rupert at that time the wind had reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour, and was blowing from the southeast. Heavy rain accompanied the storm. Temperature is rising along the Pacific Slope in advance of this storm, which is moving south-eastward, and may cause easterly and southerly gales in this vicinity," Mr. Denison said.

He went on to say that milder weather could be expected as a result. Atlin has a decidedly higher temperature, and this is a favorable indication, not only for this coast, but also for the Prairies.

Victoria experienced a slight flurry of snow during the last 24 hours, but of very little note. It has been snowing heavily, however, south of Victoria, in the Olympian range, and also at Shewanigan and the Sooke Hills.

APPEAL IN BIG SUIT ALLOWED

Litigation Involving Many Millions and Including Engineer Mine Gets Fresh Start at Vancouver

DECISION OPENS WAY FOR TRYING CELEBRATED CASE

Brothers-in-Law of Late Captain Alexander, Drowned in Sophia Wreck, Gain First Round

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12.—Following a legal battle carried on at intervals since March last, and in which some ten or fifteen million dollars were involved, the litigation of Killam & Beck barristers, won his appeal before the Appeal Court today, and opened the way for the trial of the action of Robert E. and Horace K. Williams against the administrator of the estate of the late Captain James Alexander.

The estate of Captain Alexander includes an interest in the famous Engineer Mine, and the action is for a declaration that Williams Brothers, as brothers of Mrs. Alexander, who, with her husband, was lost in the wreck of the S.S. Sophia, are entitled as her heirs to one-third or other interest in the estate of Captain Alexander.

Lacked Proofs of Marriage

Repeated efforts have been made by Mr. Killam to bring the case to trial, but each has in the past met with rebuffs, the counsel for the opposition contending that no proof of the marriage of Captain Alexander and Miss Abbie Williams was in evidence.

After hearing argument today, the appellate judges held that the presumptive evidence of the ceremony as secured by Mr. Killam was sufficient on which to go to trial, and further informed counsel that he could proceed immediately with the action if he desired.

The case will now be set down for trial, and is expected to be on the list within the next three weeks.

Mental diseases are on the increase throughout Canada, and there is great need for nation-wide co-ordinated effort in carrying on the campaign of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, declared Dr. C. M. Hinckle, acting medical director of the committee, here today.

Mental and nervous ailments, which are increasing at a greater rate than physical disabilities, said Dr. Hinckle. Thus it becomes necessary to deal not only with those who are now suffering from mental troubles, but also to inaugurate a national plan of prevention. There are more than twenty thousand insane patients in the mental hospitals of the Dominion, with an equal number not in confinement, Dr. Hinckle stated.

SHAVED FRESHMEN START RAMPAGE

Baton Rouge University Students Invade High School and Shave Heads of Boys and Girls

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 12.—Three hundred Louisiana State University freshmen whose heads were shaved last night by upper class men went on a rampage today, and before things had quieted down had invaded the Baton Rouge High School, dragged students and teachers from the rooms, and cut the hair of three women instructors, a number of girl students, and scores of boys. The wholesale shaving process at the university last night was an annual event, but the invasion of the high school was something not on the fixed programme. Girls and boys were dragged out of their seats, many of the girls in tears, and taken into the hall and school yard, where freshmen armed with razors and clippers went to work on them.

PAROLED CONVICT HAS "MADE GOOD"

BRAZIL HONORS HEROISM OF FORMER VANDERBILT

As Captain in Southern Republic's Army, Joseph Kehoe Saves 600 Women and Children

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12.—Convicted of a series of highway robberies in Vancouver, sentenced to five years in prison and paroled, Joseph Kehoe, who "made good" on being given his chance to reform, is being proclaimed as a national hero in Brazil and is declared to have saved the lives of six hundred children.

Kehoe is now a captain in the Brazilian army and news of his exploit has been received through a letter from him to his counsel, O. L. Bancroft, and through Brazilian papers.

Captain Kehoe is reticent as to his exploit and claims that the credit should go to the company which he commanded, but the papers state that at Sao Paulo, during a heavy engagement between government and rebel troops, he saved the lives of the inhabitants of a village, which was under heavy shell fire, and brought them all to a safe zone.

The Brazilian Government proclaimed a holiday in his honor, gave him a week's furlough and he was tendered a banquet and decorated at Rio Janeiro.

Mr. Pooley Pleads In House for Sound Legislation in B.C.

Opposition Leader Demands Abolition of Absentee Vote System, Which Caused Confusion in General Election—Urges Government to Lessen Burden Being Borne by Basic Industries

ARRAIGNS OLIVER FINANCIAL POLICY AND LIQUOR BUNGLING

CONSTRUCTIVE proposals for the stimulation of the Province's basic industries through lessening of taxation in respect to mining and lumbering enterprises and the prosecution of an aggressive policy of financial and other assistance in respect to farming were advanced before the Legislature yesterday afternoon by Mr. R. H. Pooley, leader of the opposition, in his contribution to the debate in reply to the speech from the Throne.

Mr. Pooley outlined the policy of industrial development sponsored by the Conservative policy after subjecting the Oliver administration to a severe arraignment, which covered a wide variety of subjects, including finance, freight rates, liquor board, game board and the absentee vote system, which he vigorously denounced.

He asserted that the net debt of British Columbia, as a result of Oliver's policies, was $38,000,000, instead of the $46,000,000 claimed by the Government, and he predicted that by the end of the present year the annual borrowings would be brought to seven or eight million more dollars.

"It is no fault of the Government if the life blood has not been tapped out of the Province," declared the Opposition leader.

During the course of his speech Mr. Pooley frequently brought members of the Government to their feet with protests or explanations, but almost invariably he had an apt rejoinder prepared for them which gave him the better of the argument.

Demand for reduced taxation on the basic industries, agriculture, mining and lumbering, in order to encourage capital to invest in British Columbia was the keynote of Hon. R. H. Pooley's first speech as Opposition leader of the Legislature. While not lacking in optimism for the future, he said that there was no object to be gained by members playing the "wait and see" game, and that the prosperity did not exist as it should in this Province.

The new leader hit off strenuously on several political questions, demanding especially abolition of the absentee ballot, and touching up Attorney-General Manning in regard to his recent changes in the liquor act administration. This latter question might yet prove the death of the Continued on Page 6

TAX PARLEY CLOSES SESSION AT OTTAWA

FURTHER INTERCHANGE OF OPINIONS ASKED

Agenda Submitted for Discussion at Proposed Meeting to Be Held at Future Date

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—The calling of a further conference to deal with the problems which arise from time to time in the administration of provincial affairs is urged by a resolution passed today by the closing session of the conference here between Hon. J. A. Robb and representatives of seven of the provincial governments. A spokesman for the conference stated that it had been found that the problems arising out of the direction of public affairs in the various provinces presented many varied aspects that the solution of such problems would be materially assisted by the further interchange of opinion.

Proposed Agenda

The following agenda for the proposed conference was set forth in the resolution:

1. Overlapping in departments where joint federal and provincial jurisdiction is being exercised.
2. The consideration of income tax as to collection and allocation.
3. Exemption of all purchases by and on behalf of provincial governments from operation of sales tax.
4. Adjustment of federal subsidies to provinces with a view to having provincial subsidies bear a reasonable ratio to provincial expenditures.
5. Provincial taxation of all nationally-operated railroads.
6. Intercorporal relations in respect to succession duties.
7. Consideration of measures for the reduction of taxation and further economies in administration.

EMPHATIC AS TO DOMINION RIGHTS

Australian Premier Insists Self-Governing Colonies Must Be Consulted on Foreign Policies

SYDNEY, Nov. 12.—Premier Stanley M. Bruce, in a speech at Dubbo, N.S.W., in which he dealt with Australia's present position in the British Empire, said if Great Britain or other parts of the Empire were attacked, Australia automatically would be at war. Therefore, if Australia was liable to be attacked owing to her connection with the Empire, she must demand the right to be consulted in the framing of the Empire's foreign policy.

"I have the greatest respect for the English statesmen," Premier Bruce continued, "but in no circumstances would I agree to place Australia, bound hand and foot, in their hands or other hands. In all questions that may affect Australia we demand that we shall be consulted."

NOT IN FAVOR OF PARTY OVERHAUL

LIBERAL GATHERING IN LONDON CRITICIZES MR. ASQUITH
Object to Presence on Reorganization Committee of Men Held Responsible for Collapse

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The steps by its leaders toward overhauling the Liberal Party which suffered badly in the last elections are not viewed with entire favor by those in the party ranks.

About one hundred Liberal candidates who were defeated in the recent polling met yesterday to discuss the situation. The candidates criticized the constitution of the committee of experts, which H. H. Asquith, the party leader, announced last Monday was working to meet the need for an overhauling of the party "from top to bottom."

Particular criticism was directed against the inclusion in this committee of some members whom the candidates regarded as largely responsible for the poor organization, which is blamed for the Liberal collapse. Demand was made for wider representation and the appointment of independent investigators on the committee.

"The Pact" Condemned

"The pact" with the Conservatives by which three-cornered fights were averted in some constituencies to assure defeat of Laborites, was roundly condemned at the meeting, and another complaint was that there was nobody at Liberal headquarters during the election with sufficient authority to advise when difficulties arose.

More democratic control of the party funds was demanded.

The meeting was held in private, but reports state that a good deal of resentment was shown by the defeated candidates over the fact that they were not invited to the luncheon of Liberal members on Parliament on Monday at which Mr. Asquith made his announcement regarding party reorganization.

Another grievance voiced was the shortage of candidates due, principally to a lack of funds. It was urged that the National Liberal contribution to the party should be increased. It has been suggested for the first time in political history that the party funds should be open and public. It has been arranged to hold another meeting at the National Liberal Club on November 24, to which every defeated Liberal candidate will be invited by letter. Meanwhile a committee has been formed ostensibly to consider questions of reorganization, but which in reality is believed to have far-reaching aims.

DUDE TRAPPERS TO PROBE WILDS

TIERED BUSINESS MEN SEEK NEW THRILLS IN ALBERTA

Wealthy Merchants to Tackle Trap Line for 150 Miles With Curly Phillips

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.—"The lure of the Dude Trap Line," which Donald (Curly) Phillips, well-known guide and hunter, is organizing in winter as a means of providing new thrills for "tired business men" who want to visit the great out-of-doors, is bringing hundreds of inquisitive wealthy merchants, according to a letter received today from Mr. Phillips by Canadian National officials here.

Mr. Phillips' proposal has made such an appeal to a number of persons that plans are being laid by some of them to spend one or two months on the trail with him in the winter in the foothills of the Northern Rockies. In some cases the visitors are coming to Canada to secure first-hand knowledge of trapping and wild life conditions, in others writing of books and magazine articles is given as their reason, and in still others, the main idea is to "loaf under unusual conditions."

The plan laid before winter holiday-seekers in that of accompanying experienced trappers over from 100 to 150 miles of trap line, where sets are made for fox, coyote, lynx, mink, martens and other fur-bearing animals, and also, during the season of hunting moose, deer, bear and other big game.

Phillips' trap line are just east of the border of Jasper National Park, in Northern Alberta, where game is plentiful and where the visitor will find plenty of thrills as he makes the journey over the trails on snowshoes or skis and with dog teams. Both men and women are included among those who have made advance reservations to be taken over the line which starts from Dalehurst, Alberta. This is considered by trappers to be the "peak year" for fur-bearing animals, on account of the seven-year cycle of rabbit life. Big catches and a plentiful supply of big game are looked forward to.

Newberry enlisted in the Canadian army, was wounded in France and transferred to a London hospital. The American Red Cross at Columbus, Ohio, where Mrs. Newberry and her daughter, Mrs. V. Newberry, formerly lived, continued the search for the son after he had been reported killed. When they found him several months ago, they could not find mother and sister, who had moved to Omaha.

Oddities in the News

Alms for Rev. Mr. Solomon—Witchcraft and Triplets—Man Stamps Himself but Mails Won't Carry Him

NEW YORK.—A man who called himself the Rev. Isaac Solomon, walked into the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer recently and asked permission to address the Sunday School class. His request was granted.

After a short talk, he passed the collection plate, put the proceeds in his pocket and rapidly departed. The startled pastor hurriedly followed and reached the street just in time to see "the Rev. Mr. Solomon" enter another church.

Police were called and took him to the station. There, after $112 had been taken from his pockets, Solomon said he was engaged in the business of converting Jews to Christianity.

SEATTLE.—The fact that Alaska Indians rarely have twins in their families nearly cost me my life in the early days of the territory. Dr. S. C. Leonhardt, surgeon on the U.S. coastguard cutter Unalga, who is at the Rainier Grand.

"I was the attending physician at the birth of the first Indian twins born in Southeastern Alaska," he says. "The father, who was the chief of the tribe, accused me of sorcery and witchcraft when he heard the news and threatened vengeance. Luckily white twins had been born nearby, just before that, and I persuaded the chief to ask the father of the white twins how he liked it. When the white man said he was the proudest man in Alaska, the chief calmed down."

SAN FRANCISCO.—Dressed in $718.08 worth of postage stamps, properly affixed and cancelled, on his shirt front and various portions of his anatomy, Chester N. Weaver, prominent automobile man, has no place to go.

A few days ago he was wrapped up in his best suit, neatly tied in an air service overcoat and addressed to "General Weaver, New York City," when he was taken to the post office.

But, after all his trouble, he has been barred from the United States mails as undesirable. Also he may be out of his postage.

For a few hours Weaver enjoyed a unique distinction. With all his stamps on personally licked and cancelled by Postmaster J. E. Power, he was officially in the United States mail. But Weaver's distinction was short-lived. Postmaster Power had a lingering doubt.

Accordingly, Power wired to Washington for instructions and received a telegram from the Postal Department denying permission to ship himself by air mail.

Ottawa Slayer Tells Female Admirer That He Prefers Hanging to Incarceration

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—"There can only be two roads the law can take, one is to hang me, the other declare me insane. I personally would prefer the first, as the latter would be a decided brand of refined cruelty."

These words are contained in a letter written by John B. Pirie, self-confessed murderer of his wife and two children here on October 1, in reply to a letter of sympathy from Mrs. F. M. Hanson-Sutton, of Toronto, whose husband served with Pirie in the South African War. The letter was made public by R. A. Olmstead, counsel for Pirie, with the consent of Mrs. Hanson-Sutton, and is the first published statement made by the prisoner, who will be tried next January.

Declares Zagou's Trip to London Failed to Initiate Negotiations—Would Not Be Effective

CAIRO, Nov. 12.—King Fuad, in the address from the throne on the occasion of the opening today of the Egyptian Parliament, declared that while the recent visit of Premier Said Zagou to Great Britain did not result in the signing of new negotiations, the Egyptian Government had full confidence that this eventually would be the result.

"We shall reach our goal," he said, "by virtue of the strength of right, of the union of the people, and of the solidarity of all the safeguards of our rights in the parts of the Valley of the Nile, without admitting or recognizing any act likely to prejudice them."

PLAN TALKS WITH LONDON AGENTS

SUGGESTION AS TO SHARING EMPIRE PROBLEMS
Foreign Secretary Would Hold Conferences With High Commissioners on Questions

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Suggesting that the British Foreign Secretary, as a matter of regular routine, should talk over the foreign situation with the High Commissioners of all the Dominions in London every week, a correspondent of The Times, dealing with the subject of Empire policy, says that the most urgent reform relates to the conduct of foreign affairs. The Dominions are entitled to a voice in the foreign affairs of Great Britain, he asserts, but at present personal contact is lacking. By such weekly talks, the newspaper says, the governments of the Dominions would be kept informed about the real dangers to the Empire before they became acute, and the Foreign Secretary would be enabled to learn the attitude of the Dominions on all important matters before he took action. It must be clearly laid down, however, the correspondent says, that the High Commissioners should not be empowered to commit the Dominions to any course without the explicit authority of their Premiers.

Want of Confidence Motion Carried in Legislature by 24 to 28, and House Adjourns

MELBOURNE, Nov. 12.—The Victorian Labor Government was defeated today in the Legislature by a vote of thirty-four to twenty-eight on a motion of want of confidence. The non-confidence motion was moved by J. Allan, leader of the Farmers' Party.

The Legislature adjourned until November 18. The adverse vote against the Government was anticipated.

The Labor ministry of Victoria was formed in the middle of August last with G. M. Prndergast, Labor leader, as Premier and treasurer. Premier Prndergast succeeded Sir Alexander Peacock, whose government was defeated on a want of confidence motion, following which the Peacock ministry resigned.

PROPOSES CUT IN INDEMNITIES

Mayor Hayward Suggests That If Government Means True Economy, It Decrease Pay and Membership

WOULD MANUFACTURE ALL LUMBER IN B.C.

Criticizes Act on Women's Pensions—Gives Examples Where Great Hardship Has Been Caused

A DOPTION by the Provincial Government of measures which would assure to British Columbia white men employment in the reasoned exploitation of British Columbia resources, was urged in the Legislature yesterday by Mayor Reg. Hayward, first member for Victoria City, in his address in the debate in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Mayor Hayward condemned the system which forced British Columbians to apply for work in mills across the international border, while such mills were kept operating in British Columbia logs and pulpwood.

The first member for Victoria threw a decided "wrench" into the machinery when he offered the Government a few suggestions on economy. First he proposed that as the Cabinet Ministers received a "fair living indemnity" of $7,500 and up for their year's services, and drew down an extra $2,000 for sitting in the House during the session, that payment of the latter sum should be abolished. He also suggested that the seasonal allowance for private members be cut to $1,500, its old level. Such action, he declared would mean a saving of $32,000, which, he considered, would be a fair start towards economy, and would show the electorate of the Province that the Government meant business.

The Chief Conservative Whip observed that the Mayor's proposal to cut indemnities was all very well for city members.

Would Reduce Members

"The trouble is that it is easy to talk about economy when it touches the other fellow's pocket, but it is a different proposition when we attack our own, and all kinds of plausible excuses are offered to show that it should not be done," said the Victoria member. "I also suggest that the Government might cut out about twenty from the membership of this House. Such action would mean a saving of $40,000, and I believe that the British Columbia Legislature, in view of the fact that our population is only about half a million people, could function very satisfactorily with twenty-eight members, instead of forty-seven. I believe the taxpayers of the Province would be very much pleased as a dose of real good tonic."

A Government member asked where the Mayor proposed to start in firing twenty members. "I would start with the Premier," he replied. "Relative to unemployment, the Victoria first member characterized the situation as abnormal and extremely serious. He regretted, he said, that no mention of unemployment or suggestion for its possible cure, had been contained in the speech from the throne. He believed that the Legislature must take cognizance of the fact that the Province as a whole, and not just the municipalities, must assist in affording some relief."

As an illustration, he said that when a certain ship went into the local drydock for repairs, over a thousand men applied for jobs, and not half of them could be used.

Wants Better Division

Mayor Hayward declared that the municipalities were entitled to a fairer deal from the Government in respect to revenue.

Victoria he pointed out, had been the first city to suggest a tax on gasoline, and it had been proposed that a charge of three cents a gallon be levied. Two cities in the province, municipalities and one cent to the Government for making the collection.

"The Minister of Finance of that time said it would be impossible to impose such a tax and the request was refused," declared the speaker. "Later, however, the Minister of Finance found it was quite possible to impose such a tax, and profiting from the suggestion of Victoria, the Government imposed a tax of three cents a gallon and grabbed it all for its own use."

Johnston Street Bridge Reference was made by the Conservative member to the details connected with the construction of the Johnston Street bridge. The estimated cost had been $750,000, which Victoria was to pay $420,000, the C.P.R. $100,000 and the Government of British Columbia $230,000. Through no fault of the city, he declared, the cost of the bridge exceeded the estimates by $200,000, which the citizens of Victoria had been called upon to pay, in spite of the fact that there were three partners in the enterprise.

He had applied to the Government for assistance, and it had been refused, he said. The railroad company, approached, had said that favorable consideration would be given the representations of the city if the Government would assume its share. Mayor Hayward urged that a grant to the city be placed in the Provincial estimates.

Farmers Declare No Armistice With Crops

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.—Western farmers decided to make Armistice Day a record grain loading day for Canadian National lines in the Prairie Provinces, when they loaded a total of 1,245 cars containing 1,432,000 bushels.

The total of cars loaded since August 1 is now 59,862, with 32,390,000 bushels.

Grain in storage at country elevators on Canadian National lines now totals 12,319,000 bushels. Loadings at the lake head are now being made at the rate of over 800 cars daily.

To date 1,021 cars have been unloaded by the Canadian National at Vancouver.

The Session

That Olympian Pose—The Premier's Demeanor—Mr. Pooley in the Hearts of the Members

The Press Gallery.

If a cynic could gain admission to the Press Gallery—an event for which there is no precedent, of course—he would probably deduce some amazing conclusions from his observations of the personal demeanor of responsible ministers in the House; and if he could ever obtain newspaper publication for them, he would find that responsible ministers are prompt to disclaim responsibility for anything attributed to them which does not suit their immediate book. Thus he might conclude that one attribute common to all responsible ministers—one which sets them apart from the mere private member—is a certain removed and Olympian pose. It is with them as who should say: "We have heard all these things many, many times before; we have examined them and found them incorrect, when they come from the Opposition; we approve them as a slight, if inadequate tribute to our excellences, when they come from this side of the House." They are like that, except Hon. Minister of Agriculture Hawke, who is mild and benignant, even in his manner of being viewed with alarm by some member of the Opposition who does not like the agricultural policy of the Government.

Hon. John Oliver is especially and manifestly Olympian. If Joseph could ever be visualized as sitting on Olympus taking notes about mere mortals, that would be a good picture of the honorable first minister as he listens to the uninformed and misguided criticisms of members on the Opposition benches. The member for somewhere-or-other in the Premier's list of things that might well be put in the Premier's pocket, and through his glasses. He rises in his place. "Does my honorable friend mean to say..." he asks; and then he reads what the member has written to confute his honorable friend. He has a wonderful memory. He is a master of categorical exactitudes. He is relentless in demanding his verbal pound of flesh. When he has played his honorable friend, when he has hanged, drawn and quartered his honorable friend, when he has flung the temerarious carcass of his honorable friend to the ravens of debate, then, and not till then, he permits himself to look up at the galleries for the plaudits of such spectators as have come to enjoy this Roman holiday.

"Say what you will of the Hon. John," said the member for Mary Todd Island the other day, "but he has an extraordinary faculty for mastering facts. He said 'I'm alive. Whatever you do, don't make any mistake in your facts when you attack the first minister. He knows what the Opposition is up to, and he said about freight rates in the Fall of 1917, and he remembers what he himself said on the P.G.E. question in the Spring of 1918. He will make a wonderful director general of any bureau of information about anything, anywhere, anytime, if you only give him a mile or two to master the facts. He has never known himself to be wrong about anything. If only he could see the Premier, he would be a great asset to the Government. I am free to concede that he is a mighty hard argumentative nut to crack. And he would probably regard that as the highest praise you could give him."

The grand strategy of the Government in the matter of the debate on the Address still obtained today. And now its object has been attained. The leader of the opposition has spoken, following the majority of his colleagues, who have sustained the burden of debate since the session opened. Mr. Pooley taunted the private members on the Government benches with being double-dealers, the party whip. He saw them as repented in all their natural and proper instincts for indulging debate on issues relevant to the good government of the Province. Private members abroad smiled with an air of unconcern. Responsible ministers sat Olympian and unmoved. But the Premier, rising as soon as Mr. Pooley had sat down, moved the adjournment of the debate. It was in sight. The Premier is to underline his heavy batteries, and according to the arrangements of the high command, his cannonade is to break the last waves of the opposition attack. That will be a few wretched speeches. Mr. Jones, of South Okanagan, is to speak. Perhaps the honorable and gallant member for Alberni will enliven the mimic war with a few sallies. One or two private Liberal members may even be allowed to indulge in minor sorties. But the end is in sight. The House will shortly be plunged into the real business of the session.

The shadow of an absent leader fell upon the House today, when Mr. R. H. Pooley, rising for his first speech since the mantle of leadership fell upon him from the shoulders of Mr. Bowser, paid a handsome tribute to his old chief. It is no secret in the House that responsible ministers would rather see Mr. Pooley in that place than his predecessor. They will know fewer uncomfortable quarters of an hour this session than they knew in the days when the sixth member for Vancouver in the last House used

Mr. Mackay, Just Arrived From Old Land, Addresses Burns Club

The hall was filled on Thursday night for the meeting of the Burns Club held in the Elks' Club, and a very interesting programme rewarded the members for their interest. The chief speaker was Mr. Mackay, of Edinburgh, recently arrived in the city from the Old Land, who gave a description of his journey and visits to Wembley, etc. Referring to the exhibition, he paid special tribute to the Canadian display and to the educational value of the exhibit shown by the C. P. R. and the C. N. R. Mr. Hastie Cochrane gave a description in Border vernacular of a Lowland shepherd working his sheep with his collie dog, the black and white shepherd plaid (woven by himself) adding to the force of the story. A second contribution by Mr. Cochrane was a piece of his own composition addressed to the Burns Club.

The musical part of the programme was very enjoyable, presented by Major Wirth and Mr. Davies, vocalists and Mr. Bryce, violinist. Mr. John Hodge, the president, was in the chair.

HOME PRODUCTS

The campaign for the popularization of home products is a spasmodic one so far as the press is concerned, but, for merchants anxious to build up better business and create a larger buying power among the public it ought to be perennial. Many times this newspaper has urged upon merchants the desirability of instructing their clerks and salesmen to push the sale of home products. We fear that are not doing this to anything like the extent that it ought to be done. Some letters have reached us on this subject which may serve to refresh the business mind. One is from a subscriber who says that, being interested in an article of local manufacture which he knew to be stocked in certain of the stores here, he went to purchase it, but was informed by the store assistant that he had never heard of it. The would-be purchaser on glancing about him discovered the article on the shelf behind the store assistant. Another subscriber asks those responsible for promoting an industrial exhibition of local products to install a little more enthusiasm into those sections of the retail trade which handle any article of a nature similar to home products, but in direct competition with them.

The second correspondent, to whom we refer, says that he finds apathy and indifference among the average storekeepers where local products are concerned. When there is a demand for an article of which there is a local brand he claims that no effort is made to push its sale, but that, on the contrary, supplies most easily reached from the shelves are the first to be placed before customers. There are some stores, he maintains, where the junior salesmen and their assistants have not even a complete knowledge of the brands their employers carry. He insists that Vancouver Island's products should not require the advertising that outside products need if the retailer would back up their sale. If this were done the producer could give the retailer a better profit, the public would get a cheaper article and the money would be kept at home. He suggests that the schools should be furnished with a comprehensive list of what Vancouver Island in particular and British Columbia in general produces, grows and manufactures. "If," he says, "the present generation is beyond realization of facts within its reach, at least let the rising generation be given an opportunity for appreciating British Columbia and all it can and does provide." He is persuaded that Victoria's complaint of the lack of a pay roll would be much diminished if the purchasing public would pause to consider daily as to how much of their housekeeping money could with great advantage to themselves and to the community in general be laid out on articles produced locally. To assist in this process the retail merchants could do a great deal—much more than they are doing.

TEACHING AMERICANISM

"The Story of World Progress" as ascribed to a textbook used in the schools is an entire misnomer. Its subject matter is largely a story of progress in the United States. The Toronto Globe describes it as a glorification of the United States, in which enterprises like the Panama Canal and the penetration of the Rocky Mountains are dealt with in detail, but nothing is said of other great canals or the achievements of Canadian railways in Western Canada. "This," says the Globe, "is history. Obviously the work of the professor of the University of Minnesota was meant entirely for United States schools, where the story of their own country supersedes everything else." The Globe concludes by saying that the book ought to be withdrawn from all schools in Canada in which it is used.

Nearly all the pupils who have reached the category where they are studying history in its broadest sense, or supposed to be, have been compelled to obtain West's "World Progress." Last year it was West's "Early Peoples," costing $2. This year this first part is bound with "World's Progress," and costs $2.25. These works have superseded Robertson and Breasted's "Outlines of European History," which was sold at $2.75, but was discarded, because its tone offended British people and many others. We are very certain that the character of "World's Progress" and its glaring omission will cause equal offence. The educational authorities would appear sometimes to assume a smug satisfaction in offending the educational tastes of our people. It is small wonder that because they seize upon certain textbooks affecting the purchase of these should be made and the good reputation of the educational authorities suffers in proportion. The time should have passed by for experiments in textbooks and for the kaleidoscopic changes that are made in them at the expense of the parents.

In the matter of history some work should be selected, preferably of Canadian or British authorship, which will put an end to all the justifiable criticism that has arisen in recent years. From the standpoint of the present textbook on world history and world achievements it should be noted that the people of this country do not want their children to be educated to be good Americans. Can it be that this matter of education is what is leading to the exodus of our young people from Canada?

AN INTOLERABLE BURDEN

Under the heading of "Our Intolerable Taxation," The Montreal Gazette draws attention to the chief incubus that is retarding Canadian development. Allusion is made to the fact that the yearly interest on Dominion debt is $165,084,000, which means that every man, woman and child in the Dominion is required to pay on this account alone a sum of $18.23 annually. In ten years interest on the debt of Quebec has risen from 38 cents to $1 per head of provincial population. The municipal and school debts of Montreal now cost $9.70 per head, as against $4.70 a decade ago. The people are no better able to pay today than they were ten years ago, though it is probably no exaggeration to say that taxation has more than trebled during that period. The Montreal Board of Trade has been attempting to arouse the people to a sense of the burden that they carry. In a report that has been issued by the Council of that Board one paragraph reads: "People who never get a bill for taxes may think they pay no taxes, but they are mistaken. Everybody pays them. You pay taxes every time you pay rent and every time you spend a dollar. Landlords pay the bills for taxes, but they just make the rent so much more and get them back from the tenants. Manufacturers add taxes to the prices of the goods they sell, and you pay them when you buy the goods in a shop. The people who really pay taxes in the end are those who cannot get them back from someone else."

In aiding the campaign for awakening public opinion in reference to the taxation incubus The Montreal Gazette says Canada needs an aroused and responsible citizenry on the part of public men and a keen appreciation on the part of the people of how they are being bled white. It is admitted that much of the heavy interest charges are unavoidable and can only be lessened by slow and tedious degrees. The war debt levy is inescapable. There are, however, says The Gazette, "a hundred and one ways in which economy can be exercised and the burden of taxation lightened if men in public were worth their salt. Even though we live in an age of motor cars, it should not be undignified for Ministers of the Crown to indulge in pedestrian exercise when they do not pay for cars out of their own pocket; and instead of erecting costly buildings to house the constantly-increasing army of Civil Servants, it would be refreshing if officials to the capacity of existing buildings. Canada is overtaxed, and the struggle for trade and immigration is yearly rendered more difficult in competition with the neighboring country, where taxation is being steadily reduced. Is the voice of the Council of the Montreal Board of Trade to be a voice crying in the wilderness when none will hear or heed? That is for the electors of Canada to decide; and, this much is certain, that taxation has grown intolerable and that the Council has set a praiseworthy example in attempting to arouse public opinion to the danger."

L'Evenement says: "Those who have read the New York newspapers carefully during the last few weeks cannot help remarking the persistence with which they recur to the topic of increasing their naval and military strength. It looks very much as though the conference and Treaty of Washington had only been a feint to assist the United States in the attainment of her desired goal. The Herald-Tribune comes out flat-footed with the assertion that the American fleet from now onwards will be the most powerful in the world. It is not content with saying that, in proportion to its object, it is as strong as the British or Japanese fleet. It nakedly reveals to the world what is in truth a military secret, that of the superiority at sea of a Power which agreed recently by international treaty to share with Japan the honor of being the second maritime nation in the entire world." L'Evenement is wrong in this respect, because the Washington Treaty made the United States share with Britain the honor of being the first of naval powers. Britain remains the greatest maritime nation by virtue of her supremacy in merchant shipping.

Where Latin quotations are used in debates in the Legislature at least the antithesis of the Latin version should be preserved. Mr. T. Uphill, the member for Fernie, is reported to have quoted "Decensus Averni facile est." That is, of course, not according to Virgil, who has it this way: "Facilis decensus Averni est. Notus atque dies patet atri janua Orci. Sed revocare gradum, superasque evadere ad auras, Hoc opus, hic labor est."

Note and Comment
By R. B. D.

A good speech well spoken, a good article well written, a good story well told, a good song well sung—we like them all. But from a disorderly array of empty words, good Lord deliver us! The leader of the Conservative Party, although he may not have the imagination of Mr. Churchill and may not have the faculty of adorning his discourses with what is known as the "literary color," is endowed with an orderly mind, his matter is precisely arranged in his mind, and convincingly conveyed to the minds of his hearers. Mr. Meighen is considered one of the best debaters in the Canadian House. He is sincere, earnest and courageous. When you hear him you are not reminded of sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, and there is no staginess in his system of conducting meetings.

The Mayor of Vancouver and his chief of police have made a belated discovery and have told the people about it. They have discovered that under the law pedestrians have the right of way upon all public thoroughfares, and upon all parts of public thoroughfares, upon the streets as well as upon the crossings of the streets. We are not sure that there is much comfort in these reassuring words for a pedestrian who has asserted his rights and got bumped into the gutter for his pains. The streets of Victoria are not nearly so busy as the streets of Vancouver, and, although fully cognizant of our lawful rights upon them, we have never, at least not lately, disputed the right of a high-powered car to precedence. If it is true, as some students of biology say, that the pedestrian is bound to become an extinct species before the passage of many years anyway, we are just as fully determined to become the last specimen of that species if we can.

However, the case may not be so serious as the biologist predicts. We are told by a distinguished authority that even the motor car is nearing the end of its days and will have to go. The air jitney, a trifling thing that can be built and put on the market at a cost of five hundred dollars, is going to be the plaything of the speeders of the future. It will be buzzing in the air before long just like mosquitoes at certain seasons of the year in the neighborhood of Vancouver and along the banks of the mighty Fraser River. Then the days of the plodding pedestrians, if there are any of them left, will be days of pleasantness and the traffic cop will have an easy job.

Politicians are not invariably an ungrateful lot. Occasionally a small vein of generosity may be found in their cosmos. A British politician has suggested that a Liberal elected to represent one of the universities should stand aside and permit Mr. Asquith to take his place in the House of Commons. That would be a very gracious thing to do, and we hope it may be done.

The Liberal leader did not prove himself a very astute leader during the short term of the late Parliament. He is to some extent responsible for the position the Liberal Party occupies in the estimation of the people and in the House. Yet Mr. Asquith is a very able man, he has had a distinguished public career and has served his country well. Some of the members of his party did not serve him well, or his position today might have been altogether different. He was betrayed by those of his own political household, and now that he is far advanced in years is surely entitled to a hater's consideration for his political friends and foes can be slow upon him. It would be a very gracious thing for his friends to offer him a seat in Parliament and for the Conservative Party to give an assurance that there would be no opposition to his election. The party politicians would be honoring themselves if they thus honored the grey hairs of the veteran Liberal chieftain.

The great ships of the new British air line are going to be equipped with staterooms, dining saloons, smoking rooms, dance halls, in fact, with practically every luxury and convenience that can be enjoyed on modern ocean steamships. We are not quite sure about bathrooms; but as the longest trip probably will not exceed forty-eight hours, that should not be any great deprivation. Just imagine—soaring through the clouds at the rate of from eighty to a hundred miles an hour and whiling away the time in the dance! From London to New York in two days, and from London to Victoria in four days! What a pace we are going to set one of these days!

The British newspapers profess to be somewhat alarmed about the future relations of Mr. Winston Churchill, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, with the Baldwin Government. The new minister has changed his political faith several times, but he has always managed to give convincing reasons for his alleged vagaries. In whatever government he served and in whatever capacity he acted, Mr. Churchill has given distinguished service. He is powerful in debate and an able administrator. In mental outlook and in temperament he is quite different from the Prime Minister. Probably

Mr. Baldwin knew very well what he was doing when he chose Mr. Churchill as his first lieutenant. We should consider the combination a very strong one. And if the views of the impulsive, brilliant Churchill and the opinions of the solid, practical Baldwin should clash at any future time we have a notion that the Prime Minister would not be worsted in the encounter.

Canada's Story Day

NOVEMBER 13.
When the American army invaded Canada in the year 1776, General Carleton, Commander-in-Chief of the army, was in Montreal. When it became obvious that the fall of Montreal was inevitable, he became necessary for Carleton to leave, and make his way to Quebec to take command of the defences there. The situation was desperate. The British army, and the militia, were already in the hands of the enemy. Their vessels lay in the St. Lawrence, and their leaders were being taken prisoner. Carleton and his staff, however, managed to escape and making him prisoner. That might mean the collapse of Canada's resistance. Carleton's quick wit saved the day. He decided to surrender to the Americans, but on condition that he should be allowed to continue the defence as long as possible, and so occupy the enemy's attention. Carleton's ships, however, were disabled, and he was forced to surrender. In a homespun suit, a tattered tunic and moccasins, from the vessel to which he had retired, he slipped away at night, and into the rowboat, rowed by a crew with muffled oars. They approached cautiously. In the darkness, to where the United States ships lay, they paddling with their hands, they guided the vessel slowly past. Dawn found them well down the river, and they escaped into the wilderness of the north. Carleton reached Quebec. There he organized the defences so well that in the following day, when the Americans were routing the enemy out of the country.

Favorite Hymns
and Their Writers
By REV. ARCHER WALLACE

"ROCK OF AGES"
An illiterate man may be instrumental in leading a scholar from doubt to faith. This was exemplified in the experience of Augustus Montague Toplady, the author of this famous hymn, "Rock of Ages." His father, Major Toplady, was a soldier in the reign of George II, when the son was only a few months old. The boy was trained at Westminster School, and later at Trinity College, Dublin, but he was far from being in a settled state of mind regarding religion. His conversation took place in Ireland, and under very remarkable circumstances. He wrote: "Strange that I, who had for so long sat under the means of grace in England, should be brought right unto God in an obscure part of Ireland, amidst a handful of people met together in a barn, and by the ministry of one who could hardly spell his own name. Surely it was the Lord's doing, and is marvellous in our eyes."

Toplady was ordained in 1762, and some years later became minister of the French Calvinist Church in Leicester Fields, London. Here he wrote and published his various controversial works, which were later released in six volumes. By conviction a Calvinist, and a keen and at times bitter controversialist, he strongly opposed the Arminian theology of John Wesley and his followers. He is described in Wesley's Journal as an impulsive, reckless speaker and writer, but of no hesitation whatever in acknowledging the remarkable spiritual beauty of his famous hymn.

Toplady's mind was vigorous, but his body was weak, and consumption seized upon him. He fought it for two years before it conquered him, and it was during the period that he wrote his immortal hymn. It first appeared in 1774 in The Gospel Magazine, which he edited. It occurred in the midst of an article in which he tried to figure out the number of a man's sins, and then broke out in this hymn, which shows the only remedy for sin. Toplady's own title for the hymn was: "A living and dying prayer for the holiest believer in the world."

The hymn has always been a great favorite. It was actually used as a dying prayer by Prince Albert, the beloved husband of Queen Victoria, and it was an article of the great statesman, W. E. Gladstone, who translated it into Latin and Greek. Mr. Gladstone was often heard humming it in the House of Commons. The six large volumes of Toplady's controversial writings are almost forgotten and neglected, but his hymn is known and sung throughout the entire Christian world. He died on August 11, 1778, at the early age of thirty-eight.

West Coast Road

Sir.—We Victorians should get solidly behind Major Gus Lyons and do all in our power to have the Government appropriate sufficient money to build at least forty miles of the Southwest Coast Road on Vancouver Island this winter. This piece of road means millions of dollars to Victoria; it has been left dormant too long; the territory is overflowing with products, timber, mineral and farming lands; there are some of the best on Vancouver Island and will have no end of settlers when tapped by a good trunk road from Victoria. Some of the settlers there will advocate a breakwater, but that will come in time when the population grows. Let us put it now with a good road, and put our unemployed this winter on the job.

If the Minister of Finance has not made note of this in his Budget let him do so. Sixty thousand dollars will do it and the boys can work all winter, and by Spring it will benefit the whole Island community and mean millions to the City of Victoria. Had there been a member of the Government representing this West Coast riding we would have paved roads to the entrance of Juan de Fuca by this time. The Hon. John Oliver and most of his Government know the value of this part of the Island to Victoria and the Province in general. It is a splendid right at our door, and kept closed through petty political spite! This sort of thing will never make Canada the nation who was cut out to be. Surely some of our supposed statesmen are ashamed of themselves and of their folly.

Church Union

Sir.—Dr. Smith in his letter of the 8th inst. has been comforted, because, as he says, the Unionists were responsible for eliminating the coercive features from the Church Union Bill. I do not wish to question the word of Principal Smith, but I do say that if all the facts were known there would be a different complexion given. Admittedly the original intention was to avoid coercion, for assurances were given that "a union to be real and lasting must carry with it the consent of the entire membership." Principal Falconer said: "It would be utter madness to go forward to a union that did not carry the whole of the churches with it." Dr. W. J. Clark, another noted advocate of union said, if there was a considerable minority not in favor of union, "he would not force the issue. Notwithstanding pledges and promises and in spite of the fact that only about one-third of the membership of the Presbyterian Church voted in favor of union, the General Assembly in the most autocratic fashion is now forcing on a large body of unwilling people what they do not want."

Dr. Smith seems to use the term "a creedless church" when applied to the United Church, but offers no evidence to refute the charge. He says "only a few churches have refused to follow the truth can there be a real creed which people can actually accept." The last phrase in that quotation is most suggestive, but Voltaire is not always Vox Dei. In my humble opinion the people are not to blame if the United Church is to be a creedless one; responsibility for that rests with men who no longer accept the Bible as the inspired Word of God. Must our doctrinal standards be toned down, or cut down to meet the varying taste and still more varying fashion of the day? If so, there is and can be no standard. The lady will realize perhaps when it is too late that Modernism will ultimately usher in an emasculated gospel and rob Christ of his crown of glory.

Dr. Smith says he was relieved from accepting certain doctrines in the Confession of Faith by "Declaratory Acts." It would be interesting to know in how far the standards of the church are recognized as binding on him. He reminds us that in Scotland, in spite of the Confession of Faith, there have been more trials for heresy than in any other country. Obviously there will be no such trials in the United Church of Canada because men will be free to preach any doctrine they choose.

Dr. Smith still maintains that each of the three united churches will retain its own "identity" and in support of that contention cites the case of the uniting of two Presbyterian churches in Scotland. I submit there is no analogy in these two cases. The uniting of three denominations is vastly different to the Scottish case. Lord Haldane says "The identity of the church is in the unity of its doctrine." If the union of these three denominations were a real spiritual union and not such a manifestly artificial one, there might be some hope of blending. It is beyond my comprehension as a humble layman how the Presbyterian Church can continue to exist when, as a matter of fact, it will be merged in the so-called "United Church." Section 4 (a) of the Church Union Bill reads: "The Union of the said churches shall become operative upon the day which this Act comes into force, and the said churches as so united are hereby constituted a body corporate and politic." Section 4 (b) reads: "The several corporations referred to are hereby merged in the United Church." The word "merged" means "absorbed" or "absorbed." So far as the Presbyterian Church is concerned it will be swallowed up in the United Church, which means its destruction as an independent body. The church will go its system of doctrine and its system of Government, and

Nothing Like It on the Market

We have for sale, at Cadboro Bay, a site of about one acre, which possesses the requisites for gardens of all sorts. A high, dry building site, with a splendid view, and a moisture-seeping slope, already terraced and drained by nature.

Victoria is justly proud of her rockland gardens with their wealth of floral display, also of her noble homesites on the levels and lowlands, with the beauty of their shrubberies, trees, lawns and parks. During the long, dry Summer, the upkeep and watering of the flower beds, rock gardens and lawns is an expensive item. To establish a garden for the growing of ferns, cacti and moisture-loving plants would be prohibitive in cost, and has not, so far, been attempted in the city. This site gives an unsurpassed opportunity for anyone who can realize its possibilities for establishing something quite new in the way of ferneries, rockeries and growing moisture-loving plants. Clear running springs and natural slopes and terraces are already supplied by nature.

The property adjoins the Uplands and overlooks Cadboro Bay, with its yacht club, beach and Indian fosse. It is close to the golf links, and within twelve minutes of the car.

all the sophistry of union advocates will not alter that fact. Just! It is strange logic to ask us to believe that the best way to preserve the glorious history and traditions of the Presbyterian Church is by means of its destruction?

When Dr. Smith was in Victoria he was asked whether a congregation in the United Church would have the right to call its own minister, to which he replied in the affirmative. What does the Act say? "The right of appointment shall rest with the Settlement Committee." Moreover the Settlement Committee's decision is final; there can be no appeal. We had a striking example in this city recently when a congregation wanted to call its own minister but was refused, with the result, a disrupted church and the formation of another independent congregation.

I appeal to my fellow-laymen in the Presbyterian Church not to be carried away with the fallacious representations of Church Union leaders who solemnly vowed to maintain and defend the church and its doctrines; they now wish to have obliterated. I appeal to all the women in the various congregations to hesitate voting out of existing the church so greatly honored and used of God in the past and which has, we verily believe, a much greater work for it to do in the future.

Yet nearly all of them served in some capacity or other during the Great War, chiefly either aboard H.M. ships or in the front line with Imperial and Canadian, strengthening the bonds between the Old Country and the Dominions beyond the seas.

MR. POOLEY PLEADS IN HOUSE FOR SOUND LEGISLATION IN B.C.

present administration, he predicted. Failure of Liberal members to take part in the debate so far he attributed to the lack of interest in the speech from the Throne, an emptiness designed, he alleged, to aid in carrying out Premier Oliver's one big objective to the House as soon as possible. In the course of his introductory congratulations he referred to several old members who were missing, especially a high compliment to his former leader, Hon. W. J. Bowser, K.C., whom he described as the best Attorney-General the Province had ever had.

Vancouver Representation—"He devoted twenty-one years of his life to the people of British Columbia," he said, "but when they rejected him he took his licking like a gentleman, as some others who came bobbing up here again did not."

He made this allusion specific to Premier Oliver when he asked why that gentleman had not gone to Vancouver instead of Nelson for a seat. "More than half the population of the Province centres around Vancouver and they are represented in the Cabinet," he said, charging that a similar oversight had occurred when Dr. K. C. MacDonald was taken out of the cabinet to give the Cabinet representation to Greater Vancouver was the more glaring, he said, since the Government represented only thirty-two per cent of the electorate.

He twitted Premier Oliver for failing to resign as promised before the election if he failed to have at least thirty-two or thirty-three supporters behind him in the House. "Perhaps he did resign, but it was only verbal," he said amid laughter in the gallery and reference to the Liquor Control Board tankie. He described Premier Oliver as being in political chains, dancing to the tune of the member for Alberni, which until recently, had been an eight-hour day tune, but was now likely to change to a beer tune.

Advertising to the financial situation. Mr. Pooley claimed there was no merit in the Government having its sinking fund intact, as a Government borrowing eight or nine millions a year would need to keep this fund up to date. He charged the finance minister with camouflaging the real status of the Provincial budget sheet by treating P.E. stock as an asset, whereas since it was originally Government guaranteed bonds it amounted to nothing at all. Charging the South Okanagan and Industrial Department loans as revenue producing debt was also misleading, he said, as the former account went for $43,000 in arrears last year and the Industrial loans were $100,000 in arrears on interest alone at the last statement.

Suggestions of economy by cutting down the civil service while these extravaganzas were countenanced, he described as swallowing a camel and straining at a gnat.

Net and Gross Debt. To the Government's claim that the net debt was $48,000,000, Mr. Pooley made reply by citing the Royal Pionners' Corporation's statement for a recent B.C. bond issue giving the net debt as $68,000,000. To that even should be added $20,000,000 of P.E. stock, which would make the prospectus was issued the Government had borrowed $825,000 from the bank. Total borrowings this year were $1,150,000, he said, and before the year was out the annual seven or eight million would have been reached, he predicted.

Dealing with industrial development. Mr. Pooley urged a bold agricultural policy, advocating especially the establishment of several more creameries in the C.T.P. country to encourage the dairy industry. Hon. E. D. Barrow contended the present Vanderhoof creamery was barely able to get along and Mr. Pooley said the farmers had to ship their cream too far away. Even though two or three thousand dollars a year loss was incurred in operating, creameries were profitable because they did not make a living.

Helps Fruit Growers. He urged greater assistance to the fruit industry, asking the Government to press for restoration at Ottawa of an adequate anti-dumping clause to keep American fruit out of the Prairie market and criticizing the administration for not standing by the promise of Dr. K. C. MacDonald, that a meter to grant $15,000 to the Vernon irrigation district.

saying that the Labor Department report from which he got his figures showed only the increase in the number voluntarily filing returns.

While not overlooking the necessity of safeguarding the interests of the public treasury, Mr. Pooley declared that timber royalties must be adjusted on a more permanent and equitable basis so that investors would be encouraged to come into the Province. He also urged the Ministry of Mines to study the mining industry more closely, claiming that the heavy burden of taxation on this industry was responsible for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company having abandoned or postponed its plans to erect one of the largest industries of its kind at the Coast. The net, rather than the gross production of the mining industry, should be the basis of taxation, he claimed, the present policy tending to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

Game Administration. Mr. Pooley renewed his suggestion that the Game Act be administered by a separate department headed by an expert and urged that proper advertising of the Province's game resources in the East would bring huntable game purchases. He urged that the Province from big game hunters. He contended also that the license to foreign hunters should be increased. This asset, he claimed, could under intelligent management be made one of the greatest revenue sources of the Province.

The Opposition leader contended that the change in the liquor administration was brought about by political interference; the former commissioners were not given the promised complete control and were now being made the goats for the sins of others. They had not controlled purchasing, the selling prices nor prosecutions, he said. When Attorney-General Manson declared that Mr. James Patterson, purchasing agent, was an official of the board, Mr. Pooley quoted Mr. Patterson's evidence before the Public Accounts Committee that he was solely responsible for purchases. He urged that the new commissioner be given complete control of this phase of liquor administration, but asked where Government was effecting any economy in having four instead of three commissioners.

"There is only one commissioner," said Mr. Manson.

"What has become of the others?" asked Mr. Pooley.

"Curiously killed the cat," retorted the Attorney-General.

"And this subject may come very near bringing about the death of the present Government before we are through," shot back the Opposition leader.

The Absentee Vote. Mr. Pooley contended that the Opposition had opposed the absentee vote provision of the Elections Act introduced by Premier Oliver and said that the use of inferior paper had destroyed the secrecy of the ballot as the envelopes could be held up to the light and their contents detected. He alleged an alleged instance in Dewdney where ballots had been tampered with in favor of the Liberal candidate and asked what had become of Premier Oliver's promise to investigate the North Vancouver charges of corruption.

"The matter is now before the courts," said Premier Oliver, "and if any wrongdoing is revealed the offenders will be punished."

Mr. Pooley contended the Government should investigate the acts of its own officials and not put private citizens to thousands of dollars of expense.

Freight Rates. Relative to freight rates and the agitation which had been carried on for reductions, Mr. Pooley denied that the Government was antagonistic to the railways. As a matter of fact, Premier Oliver, by his method of conducting the fight, had managed to antagonize the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and now the whole issue in respect to the Crow's Nest Pass agreement and its schedule of rates suspended on October 1 had been thrown into the Federal Parliament where the weight of the Prairie members' vote would probably bring about restoration of the agreement.

He regretted that the question had been made a political football. There could be no conflict between the Government and the Opposition so far as desire for lower rates was concerned, and there had been no good reason behind the election of the Government in making rates an issue in the June election except that the Government supporters had thought it might get the Opposition out of office. Such tactics had had, he said, was shown in the fact that but thirty-two per cent of the voters of the Province had expressed approval of Premier Oliver, the self-styled champion of the low rates cause, had suffered disastrous defeat, and his Government had narrowly escaped being "fired" from office.

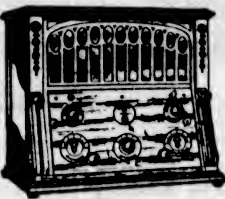

The Conservative leader believed that Premier Oliver should have used all his influence to have the old Crow's Nest Pass agreement wiped out in order that the Board of Railway Commissioners could make a new deal without being encumbered. If Mr. Oliver had really had the interest of the Province and not that of the Liberal party at heart he would have taken up the railway companies' offer to abandon the agreement, Mr. Pooley said.

In His Own Riding. Mr. Pooley recalled Government election tactics practised in his own riding in Esquimalt last June. It had been interesting, he said, to see how anxious the Liberals had been to repair Esquimalt roads, and the promises which had been made were wonderful in the extreme. Three weeks before the date of the election the Government had put a big gang of men to work cutting down the grade of the road over Fitzgerald Hill, but one week after the election the work had been stopped. Hundreds of dollars worth of material had been dumped into the woods near the roadside. He had been trying to get the Government to undertake the work for years, he said.

He endorsed the suggestion put forward last week by Major G. A. Lyons, junior member for Victoria, advocating the lash for convicted dope peddlers. He went further, and suggested that the use of the lash be made compulsory.

Russian Priest Laments Passing of Potlatch

Father Kashevaroff, Priest in Greek Orthodox Church and Stationed at Sitka, Alaska, Speaks of Change in Indians of North Since Advance of Civilization—Says Potlatch Was to Native Host an Interest-Bearing Note

"All among those who regret the passing of the potlatch," declared Father Kashevaroff, priest in the Greek Orthodox Church and connected with the Alaska mission, who is in the city for a few days before proceeding back to Sitka. Father Kashevaroff, lecturer last evening at the Girls' Central School before an intensely interested audience. His slides illustrating typical scenes among the Indians and white settlers of the northern country were of great assistance in giving some idea of the scenic background of the life described. During his stay in the city, Father Kashevaroff has been staying with his niece, Miss George, Mackenzie Avenue.

This matter of the abolishing of the potlatch is one which Father Kashevaroff feels most keenly. Not only was the custom picturesque but it filled an important place in the social life and economic and domestic security of the Indians.

"It was a social function, and as such far more important than any that the white man has. It was, in fact, an interesting and amusing one giving a potlatch was letting his principal out at a high rate of interest. The potlatch was never given for nothing. I knew a chief who, although he never did any work, went about in the most magnificent style. He was able to do this simply because when he was young he gave one or two big potlatches. And gifts were showered upon him from that time onwards."

Father Kashevaroff referred to the various types of potlatch: the memorial potlatch, the potlatch for settling debts, while still another form was in commemoration of the ancestral relations. The peace potlatch is considered the most interesting. "According to Indian law anyone receiving a present is in honor bound to give more. If this were understood the white man would no longer consider the observance wrong on the basis that the Indian beggarly himself in thus entertaining his friends. The Indian carried on the custom with the idea that he was going to be better off."

Native Art
Father Kashevaroff has noticed about Victoria many examples of the I.C. Coast Indian art, and Vancouver Island Indian art, and has been particularly interested in the basket-making, and this led him to compare the southern aboriginal art with that of the Alaskan Indian. The latter, he maintains, will do much finer work, although civilization, as always, is destroying it. He has seen baskets done by the Aleutian Indians which showed 1,019 stitches to the square inch. In the old days the natives used natural furs, even copper, where green was wanted. But now they use paint. At Diamond Bay, just as the Vancouver Island Indians are.

"The people in the Aleutians are living now in the same rapid way as we are, carrying their civilization in canoes, and riding in Cadillac and Buicks just like the rest of us. I want to dissipate the idea which many people still hold of Alaska as a place where one is frozen in all the year round, with polar bears all about on blocks of ice waiting to any good morning."

Born in Alaska
Born in Alaska, Father Kashevaroff was sent to school in San Francisco but the seminary which he attended later sent him back to Alaska to one of the missions. He compared the state of the Indians of Sitka, as he recalls them forty-four years ago when he first returned there, with the present state. Then they were sitting about in their blankets, barefooted. Not so many years later they began to wear boots. But it was a pure imitation of civilization, because even now if they start out in fine weather with their shoes on they promptly remove them, "because the cold of the ground is so bad, and one sees them returning with their feet under their arms."

Referring to totem-lore, Father Kashevaroff said that all the evidences undeniably pointed to the fact that the Alaskan Indian got the totemic custom from the Indians to the south, the suggestion being that Vancouver Island Indians and the Haidas of the Queen Charlotte Islands came over to the Mainland and gradually worked up north. He also spoke of the long time which had elapsed since the craftsmanship of the Indians of the north went south, the Russians of Alaska, who began trading with California as long ago as 1804, with Sitka as their base, having from time to time carried specimens of Indian art with them. A great deal of the history of Alaska, of the aboriginals and of the Russians in Alaska is contained in the famous library which was established in Sitka in 1886 round a nucleus of rare books left by various governors of the territory from long ago. The library was added to by a museum, established by Governor Rieggs in 1919, and Father Kashevaroff was appointed archivist of the collection, which, he declares, is unsurpassed by any existing collection elsewhere in the history of the Indian. It was in speaking of this that Father Kashevaroff referred to the part played by the sea otter in the march of civilization northward along the Pacific shores. Had it not been for the sea otter, he said, it was doubtful if Alaska would even yet have been discovered. Man's greed and man's need had sent the hunter and the navigator far off the beaten paths.

Sitka's Library
Sitka is no longer an isolated settlement of barbaric huts. They have their famous library, their ethnological museum, a national park which has a dozen or more historic totem poles. They also have a daily paper (Father Kashevaroff's daughter is a reporter on this paper), and most of the schoolboys of the city have their radio sets. Radio has brought Sitka in touch with the great world outside, and he has himself heard concerts taking place in Oakland, California.

Alaska is a land of long nights and long days. Thanks to the latter, when the summer comes, vegetation is forced ahead at a tremendous rate, the round-the-clock sunshine doing in three months what it takes six months to do in the growing of garden produce further south. Farming is very successfully carried on, and what, barley and oats grow wonderfully. It is a great berry country, and this industry may some time be developed to commercial dimensions. The Alaska flora are abundant. Around Kodiak alone a botanist counted no less than 120 varieties of wild flowers. Forget-me-nots, anemones, shooting stars and the wild hyacinth grow so profusely that they color the valleys. There is no summer frost in Sitka. Inland the temperatures experienced are sometimes quite high, as much as 87 having been recorded at Juneau. Last year the lowest point touched by the mercury was eight degrees above zero.

MR. SHANKS JUMPS INTO CIVIC FIGHT

WILL RUN FOR COUNCIL AS "PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE"

Public Warned of Men Backed by Influential Citizens—No Strings on "Five Points"

"Proclaiming himself 'The People's Candidate,'" Mr. J. A. (Five Points) Shanks last night announced his entry into the municipal election field for aldermanic honors.

As it appears customary to have delegations of influential citizens call upon and persuade aspirants to run for municipal honors, said Mr. Shanks, "I desire to inform the public that no delegation, whatsoever, of my creed or color has waited upon me. Therefore, I propose styling myself 'The People's Candidate.' I have had friends—and enemies too—drop in and say, 'Well, I suppose you'll run again.' To which I reply, 'Sure.' They then promise me their support or opposition, whichever the case may be and the incident is closed.

"But as to a real, genuine, dressed-up delegation visiting the 'Five Points' with the avowed intention of convincing me that the best interests of Victoria rest in my hands, and without my presence in the City Council the town will go to the dogs, why, they haven't got round to me yet. No, I expect them."

URSUS HAS BUT ONE FRIEND ON CITY COUNCIL

Ursus Kermodei, commonly and more intelligently styled "the white bear," would doubtless seem to be even more disconsolate if he knew that he had but one friend on the City Council willing to provide him with a new home consistent with his aristocratic rank as the world's most valuable bear.

Alderman Woodward, chairman of the Parks and Boulevards Committee, submitted a resolution that a new "bear pit" be constructed for Ursus, at a cost of $1,150. But neither of the other two members would sign the report, and the Council rejected it as being out of order.

Ursus, however, doesn't know how many sacks of cement will not now be made into a nice hard floor for him to pad about on; nor how many tall iron pickets will not now be the means of preventing a somewhat larger freedom. Why—the projected cage was eighteen feet by twenty-six feet, in the plan!

Gives Brilliant Address

Mrs. Adams Beck charmed a large audience yesterday afternoon at the New Thought Temple when she delivered her second lecture of a series on "The Wives of Henry VIII." The life of Anne Boleyn was most vividly outlined by the brilliant speaker, who gave an excellent word-picture of the turbulent life of Henry's queen. Mrs. Adams Beck, who is an exceptional student of history, gave generously from her store of knowledge, and her address included many little sidelights and details in the career of Anne Boleyn which were both instructive and vastly interesting to her listeners. These lectures are being given in aid of Camosun Chapter, I. O. D. E. fund for the Jubilee Hospital, and yesterday's meeting was largely attended. At the close of the address the speaker was warmly thanked by Mrs. Andrew Wright, who presented her with a lovely bouquet of chrysanthemums.

WEDDINGS

Johnson-Hastings

A quiet wedding service, attended only by relatives of the bride, was celebrated on Tuesday, when, at his residence, Rev. Dr. Wilson united in matrimony Junilia, daughter of the late Mr. O. C. Hastings and Mrs. Hastings, and James Gee Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gee Johnson, of Southport, Eng. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Phil R. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will make their future home in Victoria, where the bride who is a member of the Native Daughters of B. C. Post No. 3, has a wide circle of friends. The groom is a veteran of the Great War and now considerable service overseas.

Lawless-Schober

St. Paul's Church, San Francisco, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Sunday, November 3, at 10:30 a.m., when Miss Viola Josephine Schober, of Mr. Michael F. Lawless, of Victoria, B. C. The ceremony was celebrated with a nuptial mass. The bride looked very charming in a white satin gown trimmed with lace. Her veil was set off by a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Following the service a reception was held at the home of the bride. The happy couple spent their honeymoon at Santa Cruz, and on their return will take up their residence in their new home in San Francisco. Among the guests who attended the ceremony were the following Victorians: Rev. Father D. A. MacDonald, former curate of St. Andrew's Cathedral; Mr. Johnson H. Graham, groomsmen; Mr. and Mrs. William Row, Mr. and Mrs. James McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. J. Caracron and Miss Elsie Butler.

Later, Sir Adam said, he had a small list for headquarters in Toronto. The commission furnished the sitting-room and Sir Adam paid for the bedroom furniture.

As Consulting Engineer

When Mr. Botheman was appointed chief engineer, Sir Adam continued, he stipulated he be allowed to do outside work as a consulting engineer. The commission had a full knowledge of Mr. Botheman's outside work.

Regarding charges that detectives had been hired to watch Home Smith's house, Sir Adam said that the late secretary came to him alarmed, stating that people were congregating in Home Smith's house who should not be there.

The secretary said he had reliable knowledge of the facts, added Sir Adam.

"I absolutely deny that, Mr. Commissioner," interjected Mr. Bettell from his place in court.

Sir Adam said he had heard of a car going to Home Smith's house and had found out it was a Harbor Commission car. He did not know how the cost of detectives was charged, although he admitted detectives had been engaged. Bettell hired them, he said.

Returned Cheques

Sir Adam said as remount officer early in the war, he had used a car and chauffeur in buying horses for the army. He had returned his cheques as remount officer and had turned some of his own horses over to the army.

"I think all expenses were paid by the Federal Government," said Sir Adam. He was entitled to use the car and the commissioners knew about it.

Sir Adam said that the charge that there were changes in minutes was absolutely false. There may have been changes in technical terms, but no deliberate changes.

Sir Adam said Bettell, as his secretary, was the only guide to appointments, accounts, etc. He had never refused to pay accounts placed before him by Bettell.

"He was the only protection I had," said Sir Adam. "I asked protection from the staff so that personal accounts should be paid by myself and not allowed to be charged to the Hydro," he continued. If small sums of personal expenses had been charged to the Hydro, it was the fault of his secretary. He knew nothing about it.

Sir Adam denied emphatically that $20,000 of Hydro funds deposited in the Molsons Bank was to secure a loan by the Beck Companies or himself. "The Beck Companies never got a loan of any kind from the Molsons Bank," said Sir Adam.

Sir Adam said he had no apology to make regarding the entertainment of nurses overseas at dinner. His trip in England in 1924 was authorized by the Dominion as a delegate to the power conference there.

Sir Adam said he knew Chief Engineer Gabry was interested in the Cataract and Gravel Company from which the Hydro bought a steam shovel. He understood the other commissioners knew of it too.

Others have recovered nearly all of the $30,000,000 in gold bullion carried on the Laurentic sunk off the Irish coast in 1921, each receiving one thirty-second of the amount he recovered.

Vancouver Island Killer of "Devil" Child Says Power Induced Deed

Grandfather of Dead Nanaimo Babe Suffocated Child, Jury Finds—Thought Self Possessed of "Glory of God" at Time, but Now Thinks It Was Power of Darkness—Attempt to Bring Infant Back to Life With Prayers and Dancing Fails

NANAIMO, Nov. 12.—A coroner's jury yesterday found that the death of Leslie Dickie, two and one half years, whose dead body was found on a kitchen table Sunday night at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dickie, Halliburton Street, was caused by suffocation at the hands of his grandfather in the presence of the whole family. The evidence was of a weird nature, and tended to show that the entire Dickie family, comprising father, mother, three sons, two daughters, a daughter-in-law and grandson, the victim, were in the house continuously or almost so, from Saturday afternoon until late Sunday night with practically nothing to eat or drink, and engaged in prayers, exhortations and dances, under the influence and at the command of a man apparently crazed by religion, and one who thought himself imbued with divine power. Three of the Dickie sons and the mother of the dead boy, Mrs. Mary Dickie, gave evidence showing that all the boys were in great fear of their father, and that his influence over them was absolute. They were 18, 13 and 28 years old.

One of them testified that he had never been to a picture show until after he had gone to work for a living, except once or twice, when he had run away. He received an unusual beating on returning home each time. Outside of this, they said, their father was kind to them, and they believed in him implicitly. On the night and day of the crime they believed all the time that he was all right, and that he could do anything he said he could.

Mother Testifies
Mary Dickie, mother of the murdered boy, said her home was in Merril, B.C. She arrived in Nanaimo on October 3 on a visit to relatives. "My baby," said witness, "was living in my arms, when father said for us to rise and see the glory of God, and that unless we did so, we would all drop dead. He told us to go to the window, and see it. If we took our eyes off the window for a second we would drop dead. We were all terrified, and thought he was telling the truth. Baby weened and started to cry. Father said: 'Make him look out of the window.' I told baby to look, and that there was a car coming. Father then put his hand over baby's face, and crushed him. I didn't think my baby was dead. I was terrified. No one knew it was dead until he told me to look. It was then about 7:45. We had not been in bed all night. Father said he was under the power of God, and we believed in him. We were not against his will. All Saturday night we were praying. He would make us look at the ceiling, and not move for hours. Sometimes we would lie down on the floor and pray. He would not let us eat or drink."

In answer to the coroner, the witness said she had eaten nothing since Saturday morning. Her first bite, a piece of bread, was late Saturday afternoon. Exaggerating the message to the doctor on Saturday afternoon, she said two of the boys had sent for him. The father had struck the mother. Exaggerating the message to the doctor on Saturday afternoon, she said two of the boys had sent for him. The father had struck the mother. Exaggerating the message to the doctor on Saturday afternoon, she said two of the boys had sent for him. The father had struck the mother.

The youngest brother had finally struck his father and knocked him down. The father and mother had for some time attended the Pentecostal meetings in the city. The brothers did not go with them, but they had taken the youngest girl.

Dr. F. A. Ireland told in detail of having held an autopsy on the body of the dead child at 10:30 Monday morning. He believed the child had come to its death through suffocation. The witness had first been called to the Dickie home on Saturday afternoon at 4:30. On arriving at the house he had asked who had called him. Afterwards Dickie had ordered him to leave. Other members of the family also urged him to go, saying everything was all right.

The next time witness had visited the home was on Sunday night, when he had accompanied the police there. He had found the child dead, lying on the kitchen table. It had been dead more than six or seven hours. He had seen Dickie there then, and all the members of his family, besides some people whom he did not know. Dickie, said the witness, was in a confused state of mind. He had told the witness he had seen a devil sitting in the room. It had glaring eyes. Then he had heard a voice saying the devil must be destroyed. It had also said, the child was possessed by devils. Dickie had then, he told witness, placed his hands over the child's mouth and nose, but did not know how long he had held the child so. It had expired.

Thought He Felt "Power"
Sergeant Rowbottom, who followed Dr. Ireland on the witness stand, said he, in company with Constables Herdman and Freedhope, had gone to the Dickie home, and had found a small child dead. The child was lying on the kitchen table, and the whole family was standing around the kitchen looking very much excited. Dickie had told him that he had killed the baby while under some "power." It had happened in the morning, while the sun was rising, and when all went to the window to "see the glory of God." The mother, said Dickie to witness, was holding the child, while he put his hand over the child's mouth and suffocated it. Sergeant Rowbottom then placed Dickie under arrest, and after William John Dickie, the eldest of the Dickie boys, next took the stand. He first began by telling of the death of the baby. It was on Sunday morning, he said.

"Father told us a lot about religion. I think we were all in a trance, or else we were hypnotized. I can't say what it was. He told us all to go to the window, and see the glory of God. We had been praying all night, and we were powerless. We went to the window. Father was going 'Glory, glory,' and when I got to the window I saw a cloud, and as sure as I am sitting here, I thought I saw a ring, and then something coming down to earth. I know now it was foolishness, but then I was sure. I was filled with fear and chill."

Saw Sky Open
When I saw the baby was dead, and that father had done it, I said to myself, 'This is awful. I am strong and I should stop it,' but I couldn't. I was powerless to move. Then he said he could bring it back to life, and I believed him. He told us to lie down on our backs on the floor, which we did, and laid there three hours, praying. Then he made us kiss the floor. And we rolled. I was under some power."

Thirty Hours Praying
Witness next told of someone coming to the door at 2:30 and his father had told them to come back in three hours. Again someone came and were told to come back in five hours. "Father was saying he would bring the baby back to life, and I thought he was doing it. I thought once I saw the blood coming back into the fingers. When he could not succeed, each time father would say there was a demon in some of us. I was thirty hours and twenty-nine minutes praying and doing as he said. I was sure he had power from the Lord. I know now he was crazy."

One of the jurymen asked witness how it was that he sat and watched all the trouble going on, and even was there when a baby was suffocated without attempting to stop it, and witness replied: "I can't explain it. Anyone in a sane mind would not sit and see a little child killed. We were not sane. Do you suppose any of us would sit here now, in this room, and see a child killed?"

"Saw" Jesus in Clouds
Andrew Dickie said that his father "prayed that his jaw and arm would be healed, and said it would be all right in three minutes. I moved my chair, and he came over and hit me. Brother Dave came in about 7 o'clock. Father kept raving for hours and hours, and was working us all into the same state of mind as he was. I got down on my knees and prayed that God would heal my father's jaw. At 7:30 in the morning we were told to go to the window. When there I saw clouds going round and round, and I honestly thought I saw Lord Jesus coming down. The child was in sister's arms then. I did not dare turn around. Later I heard father say 'Mary, your poor wee boy is dead.' He told Mary to hold it before the window, and after she said she was tired, Dave held the baby there for three hours. Dave then asked permission to lay the baby on a chair

MR. C. A. MAGUIRE

Who, with Mayor W. W. Hiltz, of Toronto, were Canadian representatives at the conference held in Cleveland to oppose Chicago's diversion of water from the Great Lakes. On January 13 and 14 an educational demonstration will be held in Cleveland to show the amount of damage caused harbors on the Great Lakes by the lowering of the water levels.

and father said he could. Then Dave prayed, too, and later the baby was put on the kitchen table. Every little while father would work over the baby, lifting its arms, legs, and would open its mouth and do things which I thought would bring it back. Then he would dance around the room and pray some more. From the bottom of my heart, I thought he would bring back life."

Mr. James Towse said he had known Dickie for many years—for twenty-five years. His children had always been forced to obey him; his word was law in the home. Dickie had always been religious, and also a just man. In the last twelve months he had become more religious and lately had become violent. He had been more violent since attending the Pentecostal meetings. Witness had always been a religious man, believing in Jesus Christ, but did not believe in going through the motions the Pentecostals did; did not believe in shouting and praying aloud.

Pentecostal Pastor
Mr. C. T. Perks, Pentecostal minister, told of visiting the Dickie home on Sunday evening, when one of the boys had put his arms about his neck and his head on his shoulder, saying he had found Jesus and that he had many sins to confess. Witness stated he had been six years a minister of the Pentecostal faith and had never seen members of the sect go off into trances. It was contrary to his belief that a man could kill a person and then raise him from the dead. God would not allow that. But there were well authenticated cases of where the dead had been brought back to life.

Dickie, he said, had read and used up four Bibles and sat up until all hours reading, and then working next day. Replying to other questions regarding trances, witness said he had seen members of his faith praying aloud for their own needs. He had not seen people in trances, but had seen them on the floor, brought down under the power of God. They were not helpless in this condition, but could recover whenever they wished. It was not logical for a man to end something he was getting with which he was pleased too soon. When they got up was when the power of God lifted them. A week ago Friday the elder Dickie had received the baptism of the Holy Spirit at the church of witness.

Enveloped in Flames
Horse Dashes Through Barn, Spreading Fire

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.—Spreading destruction in its path, a terror-stricken horse which became enveloped in a sheet of flame when a lantern exploded in the barn of Howard McMahon, of Dominion City, Man., dashed madly through the building, setting fire to the barn. Fifty head of horses and cattle, together with a number of pigs, were cremated. A grain bin, containing 3,000 bushels of oats, also was badly scorched before the fire was extinguished.

BOOM ON 'CHANGE STILL FEATURED

Furious Pace Post-Election Buying Continues in New York and 50 Issues Set New High

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Trading in today's stock market was maintained at the same furious pace of the last four or five sessions, but price movements disclosed more irregularity as the pressure of profit-taking increased. Prices staggered under the load of these realizing sales, but they did not break, the net losses in many popular issues ranging from 1 to 3 points, leaving closing quotations still five to ten points above those prevailing on the day before election.

Total sales today were slightly in excess of 2,400,000 shares. The general industrial average touched a new peak for the year, but the general railroad average showed moderate decline.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe soared more than 13 points, a record top on what was described as urgent short covering.

Bear Traders' Attempt

Bear traders made repeated attempts to unsettle the general list.

Extreme reactions of 2 to 6 points took place in American Can, Baldwin, Kresge Department Stores, Nash Motor, United Drug, Willys Overland preferred, American Express and Southern Pacific, but practically all made moderate recoveries from their low places.

More than 50 new high quotations for the year were established during the session, the list including Southern Pacific, Frisco common and preferred, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Baltimore and Ohio, and American Locomotive.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported that the outcome of the election had stimulated the demand for steel, pig iron sales assuming large proportions. The only other important trade news during the day was another increase in the wholesale price of gasoline in New York.

Call Money Lower

Despite the unusually heavy demand for funds for operations in the stock market, the call money rate on call money was lowered to 2 per cent, holding at that figure all day.

The demand for time loans slackened somewhat, but time held firm at the top figures reached yesterday. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Reactionary tendencies predominated in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling sold off more than 2 cents to around $4.89 1/2, and French francs were again quoted, low 5.20 cents.

Moderate recoveries also took place in other European rates. Heavy profit-taking which followed the receipt strengthening of time money turned bond prices reactionary today.

Semi-speculative rail issues rose without unsettling pressure. Liquidation of U. S. Government obligations was attributed to banks and large investors who were said to be transferring funds into high yielding bonds and stocks in anticipation of a reduction of taxes by the next Congress. Liberty bonds were from 1-3/4 to 7-3/4 lower.

High-grade rail mortgages encountered unusually heavy selling, which brought losses of a point or more in many issues.

VANCOUVER MEN IN QUADRA CASE

F. R. Anderson, Attorney, and Russell Whitelaw, Alleged to Be Multi-Millionaire, Are Arrested

SCORE ARE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY PANEL

Affair Is Causing Big Sensation in San Francisco—Anderson Is Out on Five Thousand Dollars Bail

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—F. R. Anderson, wealthy attorney, of Vancouver, and Russell Whitelaw, said to be a multi-millionaire, also, of Vancouver, were among several score of individuals indicted by the Federal grand jury late today on charges of violating the prohibition law and violating the treaty between the United States and Canada relative to the shipping of liquor into this country.

Among others named were Daniel Henderson, who formerly lived in a fashionable apartment house here and who is said to have gone to Mexico, and Ruth Adele Smith, alleged to have been associated with him. The indictments followed a long investigation by the grand jury into the circumstances surrounding the sailing from Canada of the steamer Quadra, seized by the United States coastguard cutter Shawnee, with liquor said to be valued at $500,000 on board, and the mysterious voyage of the ship (Quadra) wrecked in the Pacific and abandoned by her crew.

The officers and men of the crews of the two vessels are included in the list of defendants. Anderson was booked at the county jail and later released on $5,000 bail. Upon the failure of Whitelaw to appear at his hotel, Alf Orford, head of the intelligence department, left for Los Angeles to continue the search there.

Pacific Salvage Company's New Ship Launched Yesterday

SS. SALVAGE KING

Second Launching Ceremony of Local Ship in Scotland

Pacific Salvage Company Receives Cable Stating Salvage King Was Launched Yesterday Under Auspicious Conditions—Mrs. Bow, Wife of Director of Bow, McLachlan & Co., Sponsored

MAY BE STATIONED ON COAST IN WINTER MONTHS

YESTERDAY, the second new steamer for local waters was launched in Scotland from the Bow, McLachlan ways. The Pacific Salvage Company's new steamer, Salvage King, entered the water for the first time. Mrs. Bow, wife of Mr. Daniel Bow, one of the directors of the famous shipbuilding organization, was sponsor, and, according to the cable received by the Pacific Salvage Company, from its representatives at Paisley, the ceremony was a huge success.

"She will, no doubt, prove the staunchest salvage ship ever built at a British yard," was the message received in the cable, and this is gratifying, as the local firm has done much to improve its equipment, and a vessel of the Salvage King-type is very much needed on this coast during the stormy winter months.

Cost Over $500,000. Continuing the Pacific Salvage Company over $500,000, the Salvage King is the last word in salvage equipment. Even the builders were surprised when they received the specifications, as complete was the equipment in every detail.

A vessel of 195 feet length, 26-foot beam and 18 feet depth, the Salvage King will not only prove a powerful salvage and tug boat, but also a staunch freight carrier should an event arise where it would only be possible to salvage the cargo. With the addition of this steamer to the Pacific Salvage Company's already well-equipped deep-sea tug and salvage boat, Salvage King, Victoria will possess the best salvage station in the world. The Salvage King itself is considered the most advanced type of salvage vessel ever constructed, and has been a source of interest at the various shipyards which have watched the construction of this vessel closely. Even naval authorities are interested in this new Canadian salvage boat.

A considerable proportion of automobile accidents are due to defective brakes. The recent action of the police in having brakes on automobiles that figure in accidents tested calls attention to the regulations now in force in many communities. These regulations tend to reduce this menace. They also make for fairer treatment of the careful owner who looks after his brakes, for the careless one is put under duress of having his brakes in proper condition. Were such regulations made universal, it would work for greater safety for both the pedestrian and the autoing public.

UNEMPLOYED MEN HERE ORGANIZE

OVER TWO HUNDRED PARTICIPATE IN MEETING. Speakers Declare Unemployment in City Is Acute—Want Census of Those Out of Work

Citizens of Victoria who are without employment at the present time are organizing for the purpose of bringing to the attention of the people and the governmental bodies municipal and provincial, the acute unemployment situation that exists in this country, and banding themselves together in an effort to obtain work and assist one another during the times that they are without employment.

The nucleus of an organization was formed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of over two hundred unemployed men, held in the Community Church, the old Variety Theatre, on Government Street. The gathering was presided over by Mr. Walter Inward, and Mr. A. Perry officiated as secretary. It was decided to hold another meeting, and this will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the same hall.

Special Boiler Steel. Remarkable progress in the design of high-pressure boilers has been made by the production of special steels containing from three to five per cent of nickel at the Krupp Iron Works. Drums made of nickel steel together with the end plates in one piece without seams are most suitable for the very high steam pressures and correspondingly high temperatures.

Such drums are naturally expensive. The number and diameter of boiler drums will evidently have to be reduced to lower the price of high-pressure boilers. The extent to which this is practicable will depend upon the sensitiveness of the combustion control. To secure the advantage of the low cost of high-pressure sectional boilers with their small drums and correspondingly small steam space, they may be supplemented by a steam accumulator placed between the high-pressure and low-pressure stages of the turbine. The accumulator acts as a supplementary water capacity for the drum. Dr. Munger, in addressing the World Power Conference at Wembley, stated that the electric power station of the future would show the following characteristics: Steam pressure, 570 to 1,400 pounds; boilers with a small water capacity; extensive use of feed-water heating by bleed steam; steam accumulators in the low pressure range; reheating of the steam; pulverized fuel and air heaters. Making full allowance for capital cost, the saving should be from 10 to 20 per cent for a steam pressure of 1,400 pounds, as compared with 220 pounds.—Power.

Evolution. Sir,—I admire the courage of your correspondent, Mr. Burnett, in entering the lists against the seemingly overwhelming odds on the side of evolution, and would like to make a few observations on Mr. Miller's reply.

By way of argument for the theory of evolution, Mr. Miller goes on to talk of "transitional forms" and "degenerated structural members," thereby assuming as true the very assumptions or inferences upon which the theory of evolution mainly rests. This is the tendency in all speculative science. Its courtesies, living in the realm of speculation, are apt to lose sight of the distinction between what is fact and what is mere inference from fact.

Mr. Miller says that the theory of special creation is attended with far greater difficulties than the theory of evolution. Every honest student of the subject is beset with enormous difficulties, some of them "almost insurmountable." Darwin himself says in his "Origin of Species," chapter six, that some of the difficulties are so serious that he could never reflect on them without being staggered, though his master mind enabled him to argue around them.

Mr. Miller also says in effect that we must either accept the theory of evolution or else believe that all forms of life were separately produced and made exactly as they are by the Creator in the beginning. This is a common and aggravating form of argument; an ultimatum that we must accept either one or the other of the two extreme views, when in many cases the truth may lie somewhere between. No one doubts that animals have varied greatly in size, habits and outward trappings with change of climate and environment, but that such variation has ever amounted to a change in the essential nature and structure of the animal is purely suppositious or inferential.

The absurd lengths to which some scientists will go in order to manufacture evidence for evolution was exemplified some time ago in the case of the "Nebraska tooth," a well-worn tooth out of which some naturalists constructed an imaginary missing link between the ape and man. Mr. Fortuon, in the interests of truth, other savants of equal or greater authority (notably Dr. Woodward of the British Museum) refused to adopt the fabulous ape-man, maintaining that the tooth was as likely to be that of an ancient bear!

Apparently a large section of natural science has "degenerated"—into a frantic effort on the part of its exponents to prove something on which their minds are already made up. Not truth seekers, but proof seekers.
